

It has come to my attention that Sinclair Broadcasting is attempting to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election. This could not be a more clear, egregious example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. When large companies control the airwaves, democracy is diminished for the sake of profit.

Sinclair's actions show precisely why media ownership rules should be strengthened, not weakened. Thank you.
